PINCHOT REPLIES TO WATSON

Admits He Recommended Heney as Special Counsel.

GOVERNOR ISSUES STATEMENT

Declares What He Is After Is to Get the Prohibition Law Enforced—Not Pressing For General Investigation of Treasury Department, He Says. High Time to Put an End to Corruption, He Adds.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 14.—Replying to charges made by Senator Watson (Rep., Ind.), in a senate speech, Governor Pinchot issued a statement there admitting he recommended to Senator Couzens (Rep., Mich.) the name of Francis J. Heney of San Francisco as special counsel to the senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau.

Governor Pinchot said:

"Last October, in a public speech in Washington, I described the breaking down of the federal enforcement service in plain terms. Last January, in another public speech in Washington, I demanded a congressional investigation. In a case like this the only way to get the law enforced is to expose the facts. What I am after in this matter is to get the law enforced. I have made no secret of what I think of the disgraceful breakdown of the enforcement service of the treasury department, of the debauchery, crime, suffering and death it has brought to the people of my state and of many another.

"After investigation of the internal revenue bureau was ordered by the senate, I got into touch with Senator Couzens on the question of prohibition enforcement, and on that alone. In conversation I suggested, as others had done before, the name of Mr. Heney, a trusted friend of President Roosevelt, for whom he had conducted investigations, as that of a man whom Senator Couzens' committee would be fortunate to secure as counsel.

"Senator Watson has overshot himself. He says, 'Nobody has expected that prohibition would be rigidly enforced up to the present hour.' Every self-respecting, law-abiding American must resent the spectacle of a senator of the United States publicly confessing that he does not expect the constitution to be observed. If Senator Watson does not, the people of the United States who forced the enactment of the eighteenth amendment do expect it to be obeyed.

"If Senator Watson will take the time to read the national platform of the Republican party and the message to congress of President Coolidge, he will discover that he has not only been denying one of the basic tenets of his party, but is outraging the sentiment of a large majority of his fellow Republicans. Moreover, every self-respecting, law-abiding American must scorn Senator Watson's plea to keep the shameful facts of the enforcement failure from public exposure. Until the reasons for the failure are known, there can be no constructive legislation to set it right.

"I have no sympathy with investigations as mere fishing expeditions. I have no personal purpose or animus in this matter. I am not pressing for a general investigation of the treasury department. But I assert and challenge Mr. Watson, or anyone else, to deny it, that it is high time to put an end to the corruption and inefficiency which exists in the federal enforcement service. Since that service will not enforce the law, the people are entitled to know the reason why."

DAUGHERTY'S PLANS

Former Attorney General to Reside in the Buckeye State.

Columbus, April 14.—Former Attorney General Daugherty denied rumors that he would take up his residence in New York. In a statement issued here he said he would go to Asheville, N. C., for a few days' visit with his invalid wife. Daugherty added: "A little later my intention is to return to Ohio and, perhaps, make one speech. As soon as possible, I shall return to Ohio to live, for under no circumstances could I be tempted to give up Ohio as my place of residence. The country will applaud the action of the president in sending to the senate the message in support of Secretary Mellon and the cabinet, thus taking an unqualified and positive position in the support of constitutional and orderly processes of government."

COX'S SUPPORT URGED

Letters Sent Out From State Democratic Headquarters.

Columbus, April 14.—Letters have been sent out from state Democratic headquarters urging the support of former Governor James M. Cox and calling on Ohio Democracy to elect only Cox delegates. Necessity for presenting a solid front from Ohio is urged so delegations from other states may not say Cox has not the solid backing of Ohio. The letters pointed out this is the first time the Democratic state organization formally has backed the candidacy of any person in a primary fight and that the action of the committee is taken "as a matter of right and a means to insure a victory in nation, state, district and county." They are signed by 26 members of the Democratic state executive and central committees.

Former Governor Cox is back in Ohio after a winter spent in Miami, Fla., and it is expected the campaign for delegates will take on new life.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

Hard Fought Pennant Races Expected in Big Leagues.

Chicago, April 14.—The baseball season will be formally opened Tuesday by the American and National leagues and American association. Wednesday the International league will pry off the lid. Keenly fought pennant races are anticipated in all organizations.

Fifty recruits will appear in the ranks of the National league clubs. With the exception of the Cincinnati Reds and New York Yankees, major changes have occurred in the line-ups of every contender. Taken as a whole, the clubs in both major leagues appear better balanced than in several seasons. This is particularly true of the American league, where such second division outfits of 1923 as the Red Sox and Athletics have been strengthened to such a degree that they appear among the outstanding obstacles in the path of the world's champion Yankees. General pre-season opinion has selected two clubs in each circuit as those most likely to upset the drives of the Yankees and Giants to upset baseball history by capturing pennants for the fourth straight year. In the American these are the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians. Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are expected to prove the most troublesome for the Giants. Record crowds are anticipated at all of the opening games tomorrow.

THAW'S CASE UP

Evelyn Nesbit Fighting Efforts to Secure Harry's Release.

Philadelphia, April 14.—Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, will fight the effort being made to secure Thaw's release from the Pennsylvania hospital here. She has filed a petition to be permitted to intervene in the proceedings in behalf of her son, Russell William Thaw, 13. Miss Nesbit's petition states that "Russell William Thaw has an expectant interest in the estate of Harry Kendall Thaw, and an interest in the estate of the father of the said Harry Kendall Thaw. Your petitioner believes that the said Harry Kendall Thaw has not fully recovered his normal mentality and is still a lunatic, and that if he should be freed from restraint at the present time and his estate restored to him, would dissipate the interest which the said Russell William Thaw has in the estate of Harry Kendall Thaw and the said William Thaw, deceased."

Thaw's application for his freedom from the asylum came before common pleas court today on his own petition to have his sanity determined by the jury.

Commits Suicide in Cell.

Youngstown, O., April 14.—Vincent Blada, 45, of McKeesport, Pa., committed suicide by hanging in the city jail here. He had been picked up by police, who said he was acting queerly. In his pocket was found a slip of paper bearing the name of George Hodody, Detroit.

Newspaper Deal.

Ironton, O., April 14.—The morning and Sunday Irontonian has been sold to Harry E. Taylor and Valle E. Harod, owners of the Portsmouth Evening Times and the Portsmouth Morning Sun. The new owners will completely re-equip the Irontonian plant.

CARRIES TARIFF PROVISIONS

McNary Farm Relief Bill Now Before the Senate.

HAS COMMITTEE'S APPROVAL

Norris-Sinclair Measure Also Receives Indorsement of the Senate Agricultural Committee—Measures Provide For Creation of Agricultural Export Commission and Export Corporation.

Washington, April 14.—The senate agricultural committee favorably reported the McNary-Haugen and Norris-Sinclair farm relief bills. The house is expected to take action on the McNary bill before its consideration in the senate on account of its tariff provisions, which are required to originate in the house.

The McNary-Haugen bill provides for the creation of the "United States agricultural export commission," and the "United States agricultural export corporation." An appropriation of $200,000,000 would be authorized as capital stock for the export corporation.

The commission would be directed to determine a ratio price for basic agricultural commodities by computing the average price of all commodities for the period of 1905 to 1914, inclusive. When the commission finds that the domestic price of a farm commodity is lower than the ratio price it shall recommend to the corporation the purchase of a sufficient amount of this commodity to bring the domestic price up to the level of the ratio price.

The Norris-Sinclair bill would create the "farmers' and consumers' financing corporation," with a capital stock of $100,000,000 to be appropriated out of the treasury. The purpose of the corporation would be to provide a market for the sale of agricultural products and to promote a more direct contact between producer and consumer with a decreased price to the consumer through a reduction in commission charges.

To obtain reduced rates for export shipments, the corporation would be authorized to operate free of charge any idle vessels owned by the United States for the transportation to foreign ports. The net earnings of the corporation would be accumulated as a reserve until this amounted to $100,000,000, and thereafter the net earnings would be paid into the treasury until the payments equal the amount advanced for the capital stock.

The bill authorizes the president to direct the United States tariff commission or the secretary of agriculture to make investigations from time to time to determine the rate of duty upon any agricultural commodity necessary to maintain the domestic price at the level of the ratio price.

The life of the McNary-Haugen bill is limited to five years, it being framed as an emergency measure. The farm bloc plans to have the Norris-Sinclair bill entered as permanent legislation and eventually to substitute the McNary-Haugen bill.

DOINGS IN OHIO

To Cope With Crooks.

Columbus, April 14.—Under the direction of experienced detectives, a miniature police department has been organized by the Ohio Hotels association. There are Bertillon records, pictures, finger prints, and all the other paraphernalia that help to detect and identify the hotel swindler. The protective department is working in conjunction with the police departments of the cities and detective bureaus. Bulletins will be issued each week and information will be exchanged.

Boy's Skull Fractured.

Cleveland, April 14.—Wilbur Schoenbach suffered a fractured skull when felled, police say, by a piece of lead pipe in the hands of a drifter, a man, Dominic Chap, 51, who was arraigned in court on a charge of assault to kill. Pleading not guilty, Chap denied he was intoxicated, but admitted he had struck the kid, saying he thought Wilbur was one of several boys who had been taunting him. His case was set for hearing April 25.

Cafe Owners Restrained.

Hamilton, O., April 14.—Temporary injunctions, restraining the owners of three Hamilton cafes from selling liquor on their property, were issued in United States district court at Cincinnati. The saloons affected are owned by Henry and Tony Schmidt, Charles Helvey and S. H. Milliken and George New.

To Run Down Rum Smugglers.

Cleveland, April 14.—A speed boat equipped with machine guns will cruise along Lake Erie's coast line in his vicinity to run down smugglers of liquor from Canada, it was announced. The craft will be in charge of H. A. Dykeman, chief of the prohibition agents in this territory.

Gun Falls; Infant Killed.

Youngstown, O., April 14.—Wilma Esther Hoffman, aged 14 months, toddled to a dresser and clutched at a revolver which had been left lying there. As the weapon struck the floor it was discharged, and the bullet went through the baby's heart.

Liquor Seized; Three Men Held.

Columbus, April 14.—Three men were held for investigation following seizure of more than 200 quarts of whiskey and a Cadillac touring car by two patrolmen. The men held are Peter J. Glassman, Nathan Levi and Malcolm Bond.

Dies of Injuries.

Canton, O., April 14.—Frank Hunter, 65, died at his home here from injuries received three months ago, when he was struck by an automobile, the driver of which fled and was never apprehended.

Clothing Store Robbed.

Springfield, O., April 14.—For the second time within six months burglars entered the clothing store of Leo Urban at St. Paris, near here, and obtained money and merchandise totaling $3,000.

Lineman Electrocuted.

Sandusky, O., April 14.—J. H. Thorp, 35, was electrocuted at Bay Village while he was repairing a street light. Bystanders saw him fall from the pole.

Receipts Almost Doubled.

Columbus, April 14.—Receipts of the workmen's compensation fund for the month of March were almost double the amount they were in February, according to a special report of J. H. Lamneck, in charge of this division of the industrial relations department. Receipts for March totaled $2,326,053, as compared with $1,486,735 during February. Disbursements in February were $824,915 and in March $993,506.

IMMIGRATION BILL BEFORE SENATE

Carries Japanese Exclusion Provision, as Passed by House.

LEADERS TO HOLD CONFERENCE

House Members Will Insist on Retention of the Exclusion Provision, Despite the Protest of the Japanese Government—Action Likely to Be Taken by Senate Against Daugherty of Midland National Bank.

Washington, April 14.—The Johnson immigration restriction bill passed Saturday by the house was sent today to the senate, where its fate is problematical.

The measure as it passed the house carries a provision excluding Japanese, against which the Tokio government has entered a strong protest. The bill fixes the 1890 census as the basis of the 2 per cent quota. An effort is to be made by Republican leaders to agree upon a policy both as to Japanese exclusion and the census quota basis. The existing law, which expires on next June 30, fixed the quota at 3 per cent on the 1910 census and had no provision relating to Japanese immigration, which for years has been regulated by a so-called "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan. Secretary Hughes has urged that the American government continue to recognize this agreement and the Japanese be placed on the same quota basis as the nationals of other countries.

It is said the house leaders will insist on retention of the Japanese exclusion provision. The Japanese ambassador, in a letter to Secretary Hughes, protested against any exclusion feature. Senator Johnson (Rep., Cal.) and other senators from the Pacific coast plan to take formal cognizance of the letter and redouble their efforts to have an exclusion feature written into law.

The Daugherty committee is to decide early in the week on what action it may take against M. S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general, for blocking its search into bank records at Washington C. H. O. The committee also will confer with Attorney General Stone, that the future treatment of charges which its testimony has raised may be considered. Chairman Brookhart will go over the situation with his colleagues and wait for the return of Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) from a speaking trip to Chicago before announcing the new program. They are anxious to force contempt proceedings against Daugherty, to cite him before the bar of the senate, and possibly also to ask the district attorney in Washington to indict him.

OHIO NURSES TO MEET

Twelve-Hour Duty One of the Questions to Be Considered.

Columbus, April 14.—The annual convention of the Ohio State Association of Graduate Nurses will be held here beginning tomorrow. Between 700 and 1,000 nurses are expected to attend. The question of 12-hour duty for private duty nurses will probably be taken up during the convention. This issue has been an unsettled question in several of the districts. It has been adopted in some cities. Miss Blanche Pfefferkorn of Cincinnati, president-elect of the state body, will be installed in office during the course of the convention. Miss Lucille G. Kinnell of Columbus is secretary of the association, and Miss Nettie Deyell Schnable of Lima is treasurer. Miss Clara C. Wilhelm of Columbus is secretary of the Twelfth District association. The convention will close with a banquet Thursday evening.

Woman's Body Found.

Chicago, April 14.—The body of Mrs. Emma Kohnke De Goy, found Friday by two small boys beneath a pile of brush wood in a forest preserve, the throat slashed and with a newspaper of Feb. 26 wrapped about the cut, was identified by Miss Ida Kohnke, the girl's aunt, who said her niece and the girl's husband disappeared mysteriously Feb. 22. Police are searching for the husband.

Forty Under Arrest.

Pittsburgh, April 14.—Forty persons are under arrest on charges of murder and rioting as a result of the fatal clash at Lilly, Pa., recently between klansmen and residents of the town. Twenty-six alleged klansmen were arrested the night of the riot and were denied application for a writ of habeas corpus by the Cambria county court.

APPROVED BY CRABBE

Card Fish and Game Men Appointed Legally, He Holds.

Columbus, April 14.—Attorney General Crabbe has given his approval to card fish and game men.

In an opinion rendered to Governor Donahey, the attorney general says card deputies employed by the fish and game department of the state division of agriculture not only are appointed legally, but the practice of paying them by means of a percentage of the fines assessed against violators of the fish and game laws whom they arrest is legal also. Crabbe said:

"The status of the special fish and game protectors is clearly distinguishable from the so-called card men of the prohibition department. In the latter the question of incompatibility enters into the situation. The 'card men' were designated by the state and used the powers of such appointment by virtue of such alleged appointment, and were in the actual employ and pay of a justice court or municipality. In the case of the special fish and game protectors, they are hired by the director of agriculture, and perform their duties under the supervision of such director, and every step necessary to the appointment, supervision and payment is provided for by statute."

HERE AND THERE

First Lieutenant Solomon B. Ebert, Corporal Emmitt A. Reese, pilot, and Private Emmitt W. Marsh were killed when their plane caught fire and crashed to earth near Leon, Okla.

Second Lieutenant Osborne Wood, son of Governor General Wood of the Philippines, resigned from the army.

French ministry of marine has given up as lost the steamer Port de Brest, which sailed from Bordeaux Feb. 8 for Dakar, Senegal. It is believed that all on board, including 37 officers and men, went down with the ship.

Bandits bound and gagged the watchman at the plant of an Atlanta (Ga.) printing concern and after locking him in a small room, escaped in an automobile with $20,000 worth of state tobacco stamps.

William Jennings Bryan qualified at Tallahassee, Fla., as a candidate in the June primary for delegate-at-large to the Democratic national convention.

Homemade Breezes

Ocean breezes, or at least good imitations of them, are said to be obtainable from a household electric vacuum cleaner at about 2 cents an hour. The bag and driving belt of the cleaner are removed and a sponge soaked in salt water is placed in the suction end. The effect of sea breezes is heightened by placing the converted vacuum cleaner in an open window.—Popular Science Monthly.

English Life Getting Longer

The editor of Whitaker's Almanac, for years accepted as a handbook of much miscellaneous information in Great Britain and the world, is preparing to change his tables relating to the expectancy of life, which is now ten years longer than a few years ago, due to the work of the various public health organizations.

Disputes Coed's View of Red-Haired Men

The girl students of the University of Minnesota answered a questionnaire as to the kind of husband they wanted. Good looks, money, health, chivalry and other qualifications came in for the usual number of votes. One girl, however, wrote this:

"He need not be good-looking, but he must have red hair, because all red-haired men are very ambitious."

This girl is wrong, says the Seattle Post. And because we like all the girls in the University of Minnesota—and all the girls outside of said university—we address this erring thinker in these imposing words:

Do not, girlie, insist upon the red-haired. Give the black-haired and the brown-haired and the sandy-haired and the gray-haired, and even those who have no hair at all, a chance. They are all ambitious. True, most of them never get anywhere, but that is because their brains are inferior and not because their hair is not red.

Napoleon was not red-haired. Neither was Shakespeare, Michelangelo nor Casanova, the great lover. Henry Ford is not red-haired and yet he is chock-full of ambition. The same with LaFollette, Borah, McAdoo, Underwood and Al Smith. They are all simply bubbling over with ambition and yet they have no red hair. And there is William Jennings Bryan. You could have no possible doubt of his ambition, and yet the two or three hairs he has left upon the top of his head are not red. Even Doctor Cook is not red-haired and yet his ambition led him to jail.

Do not impose this limitation upon the boys, dear lady. Marry the one who first finds his way to your heart. If his hair is yellow or green or absent, forgive him. He may still make an ideal husband.

Yankee Genius Floods World With Everything

I make bold to believe that in the United States today at the close of this first quarter of this Twentieth century there can be seen an ingenuity in plot-making and a fertility in devising situations recalling that which was to be observed in France in the days of Scribe and Dennery and Sardou and in Spain in the days of Lope de Vega and Calderon, two periods of dramatic dexterity and of abundant productivity. The American faculty of invention, which has filled the world with Yankee contrivances, seems to have been directed suddenly to the construction of plays, says Brander Matthews in Scribner's. I am aware that to say this is to lay myself open to the retort that our plays are as machine-made as our Yankee contrivances, and even that we are engaged in quantity production rather than quality production. If thus cornered I should have to confess that there may be more than a little truth in the charge; but I should prefer as my rejoinder the statement that not a few of the American plays of this century are as interesting in the library as they are in the theater.

Discovered

A young man whose gallantry was in excess of his pecuniary means sought to remedy the defect and to save the money required for the purpose of expensive flowers by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast-off clothes.

One day he received a bunch of roses which he at once dispatched to his lady love.

In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome he called at the girl's house the same evening and was not a little surprised at a frosty reception.

After a pause the girl remarked, frigidly: "You sent me a note today."

"A note! I? To be sure, I sent you flowers; but—"

"And this note was with the bouquet. Do you mean to deny it?"

And the young man read: "Don't forget the old trousers you promised me the other day."

Declares Ants Are Toppers

Ants consume more alcohol in proportion to their body weight than does the most accomplished "old soak," asserts Prof. Paul Lindner, chief of the Fermenting Industry Institute in Berlin, Germany. The industrious insects manufacture their own home-brew in their digestive canal by the action of yeasts on the milky juices that they extract from aphids, or plant lice, which they keep for that purpose.

Other insects have similar homemade home-brew outfits that they use to capacity, Doctor Lindner stated. Wasps are accomplished bootleggers.—Popular Science Monthly.

MANY FAMOUS MEN
STUPID IN SCHOOL*Napoleon, Blucher and Darwin Slow Scholars.

Heidelberg. — German historians delving into the distant past have compiled a list of some of the "Peck's Bad Boys" and the "Tom Sawyers" of Europe who became world figures in achievements of various kinds and especially on the battlefield.

Napoleon stands first, not that he was a particularly bad boy, but because of his campaigns and accomplishments which brought him everlasting fame. Napoleon, it is recorded, was always a constant source of annoyance to his teachers, and when he was a military academy student he was known as one of the most stupid young men in his or any of the other classes.

One of Napoleon's opponents in war in later years, the duke of Wellington, was known as a lazy youngster, and in his school days his thoughts always appeared to be preoccupied with matters other than books or study. General Blucher was another who, according to German custom, was known as a "last place" pupil, one of the class relegated to the rear seats in the schoolroom because of their unwillingness to learn.

Charles Darwin never cared much for his schoolroom tasks, "but always appeared more interested in birds and animals and things in the great outdoors, and was known among the other youngsters as having a weakness for chasing every cat or dog in sight."

Isaac Newton was another "last place" pupil. Nelson, the British naval hero, while not exactly a bad boy in school, is listed as having no talents at all, and even below the average in his classes.

Bombing of Cities toFeature Next Big War

Cleveland.—Belligerent nations will not try to kill enemy soldiers in the next war, Benedict Crowell, assistant secretary of war under former President Wilson, declared here in a recent address.

"The League of Nations is failing," declared Mr. Crowell. "The nation or group of nations which enters the next war adequately equipped with tanks, gas and airplanes will win a quick and probably decisive victory. In the next war governments will use sneezing or laughing gas, or anesthetics, to put men temporarily out of the fighting. Death-dealing gases were used less and less as the last war progressed, and that shows the tendency. A high ranking German officer said after the armistice that it was General 'Tank' and not the genius of Marshal Foch that turned the tide against the Germans."

"Airplanes will jump over armies and attack the directing brains behind. I believe that bombing cities is not justifiable, but will be carried out in the next war. Supply depots and junction points will be destroyed and the morale of the civilians behind the lines impaired."

Has Wedding Reception,
Though Bride Eloped

Uniontown, Pa.—Notwithstanding the fact that he had, figuratively speaking, been left at the church by his fiancée, who had eloped and married another man in Cumberland, Md., Joseph Richards, a citizen of Uniontown, held his wedding reception as per schedule, and his guests voted they had a great time.

Richards was to have married Rose T. Simon. He had presented her with a diamond engagement ring and a circlet of gold. When he found she had eloped Richards refused to mourn. Wedding invitations had gone out to relatives and friends in all sections of southwestern Pennsylvania and he went on with his arrangements.

Handsome and valuable presents by the score were brought by the guests for the bride and groom. August Burnett of Charleroi, the best man, expressed disappointment. He had decked himself out in new raiment.

SURVEYOR FINDS TWO BIG LAKES ON BAFFIN ISLAND

Are Comparable in Size to Lake Ontario—Iron and Coal Found.

That the southern part of Baffin Island contains two lakes comparable in size with Lake Ontario, and that the island, which is almost 1,000 miles long from north to south, is nearly five times as large as Cuba, were some of the striking facts brought out in a report by F. D. Henderson, D. L. S., of the topographical survey of Canada.

Mr. Henderson, in the capacity of surveyor and topographer, accompanied the 1923 Arctic expedition of the northwest territories branch, Department of the Interior of Canada, under J. D. Craig, D. L. S. His duty was to survey lots for posts for the Royal Canadian Mounted police, the Hudson's Bay company and other private interests at the points at which the Canadian government steamer Arctic called, and to take magnetic observations and make topographical surveys wherever possible. In all, eight lots were surveyed at Craig Harbor, Dundas Harbor, Eskimo Point, Ponds Inlet and Pangnirtung, and short traverses were run at the two latter places. As the governing lines of the Dominion lands survey system have not been extended to the Arctic islands, all lots were classed and numbered as group lots.

The conditions were unusual. Continuous daylight prevailed during part of the period in which the surveys were made. Solar observations were the only kind taken and Greenwich time was obtained from the ship's chronometer checked up by wireless, that great aid to the scientific worker in the field.

In the intervals between survey work trips were made to inspect outcroppings of iron and coal (one of the latter is used locally as a source of fuel supply) and the condition of the Eskimo habitations, the character of the vegetation, etc., were noted. Mosses and lichens were everywhere in abundance, and flowers, the most conspicuous of which was the yellow Arctic poppy, grew in all sheltered places, sometimes within a few feet of a glacier. No trees were found, the nearest approach being the shrublike Arctic willow with branches half an inch in diameter. The branches spread out horizontally close to the ground. It was sometimes possible to gather enough of the wood to boil a kettle of water. Blueberries were found at Ponds Inlet, but smaller and not so sweet as in southern Canada.

At Ponds Inlet and Pangnirtung there are native villages near the Royal Canadian Mounted police and Hudson's Bay company posts, containing normally from 75 to 100 Eskimos each, although at times as many as 200 natives assemble at these points. Those at the former post live in permanent huts, under the direction of the authorities, have been neatly arranged in a line along the shore, whereas at the latter the natives still retain their skin igloos.

At many places there are remains of Eskimo encampments and villages. Some of these are evidently very ancient and it was suggested that they would probably yield a rich store of valuable material to the archeological excavator.

Rescued From Drowning in River by Chinese Pirates

Mrs. S. B. DAVIS arrived in San Francisco recently from the Orient on the Pacific Mail liner President Taft with a diverting story of having been rescued from drowning by Chinese pirates and a denial that she is, or has been, a moving-picture actress, even if her maiden name was Margaret La Marr. The lights for Mrs. Davis is the time when the boat she was in was wrecked on a Hongkong river during a storm she was saved by the crew of a Chinese pirate junk.

Statue of Apis Found Near Budapest, Hungary
The discovery of the statue of Apis, the Egyptian bull of Memphis, and a pyramid in the former capital of the old Roman colony of Pannonia, near Budapest, Hungary, which has just been announced, is looked upon as constituting further proof that Egyptian culture was spread wherever the Roman legions penetrated in the Second century.

These valuable relics will be examined by international experts.

Smoking Introduced in America by the Chinese

The Indian long has enjoyed the reputation of having invented the pipe and bequeathed to white men the joys of tobacco. Recent discoveries in the West indicate, however, that the Indian in turn may have inherited the smoking habit from a much earlier period, and that smoking was introduced into America by the Chinese at some remote time. It is certain that the East Indians have been smoking for some two thousand years.

Long before tobacco was discovered smoking had become a fine art. Babylon doubtless had many smokers who were as particular about their pipes and brands as any one today. They smoked different woods and herbs and paid special attention to blending them to get the desired flavor. A piece of wood was burned to a charcoal, and smoked in an ornamented pipe. When the charcoal was red hot a powder was dropped on it and the resulting smoke was inhaled. Throughout Central Asia in remote times smokers were common and were exacting about the "tobacco," or whatever it was they smoked. They used the gum from trees, bark and many aromatic herbs and smoked various kinds of flowers.

Soldiers have been smokers from remote antiquity. The Russian military camps still yield pipes. The ruins of Roman cities, notably Pompeii, show that smoking must have been common. Many of the pipe designs were most elaborate.—New York Times.

Drew Clark went on trial at San Diego, Cal., charged with the murder of George B. Schick, wealthy Belaire, O., broker, who disappeared early in 1923.

Fred VanGordon, accused of killing his wife and their 12-year-old son, was shot to death in a gun battle with Sheriff Peyton of Douglas, Wyo.

Mrs. Judy Dailey, 34, widow of William Dailey, who was mysteriously slain three months ago, was shot and instantly killed at Madison, Ill., by George Street, 19-year-old son of former Captain of Police William Street. No cause is known.

WOMAN'S CLUB

Mrs. John F. Mosure is President of New Singing Organization.
The Buckeye Woman's Republican Glee club of Columbus, elected officers last week as follows: President, Mrs. John F. Mosure; vice president, Mrs. Del D. Hooper; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry Stephens; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Hermann Frank; treasurer, Mrs. R. P. Bartholow.
This club is a year old and numbers about forty active members and several contributing.
The club is preparing for the coming campaign and will bend all its efforts to help in the election of Calvin Coolidge to the presidency.
The first real, official appearance of the club will be at the National Republican convention in June at Cleveland and all its members are working to the end that Ohio will have an other Glee club of which all may well be proud. Unless all signs fail the Buckeye Woman's Republican Glee club will make a big hit at the big pow-wow in the Forest City.
The men of the famous Republican Glee club have about fifty years start of their sisters, but the new organization will this year set a record for the years to come, and the younger generation of the Woman's club will in the same number of years have the same recognition the men's club is enjoying today.
This is the only incorporated Woman's Glee club in the United States and its president is Mrs. J. F. Mosure of Columbus, formerly Miss Mae Prentice, of Circleville.

HOME BURNED

House of Charles Heffner and Goods of Albert Knece Consumed.
The home of Albert Knece on the Charles C. Heffner farm near the Ringgold pike in Washington township, burned to the ground Sunday afternoon.
The fire was discovered by Raymond Shallenberger and John Heffner as they were driving along the road. Alighting from their car, they ran to the house, kicked in the doors and succeeded in saving a portion of the household goods.
Mr. Knece and family were absent visiting friends at Kingston and they did not discover their loss until they arrived home. The farm on which the house is located, was formerly owned by E. B. Strawser and was recently purchased by Mr. Heffner. The wind carried the flames to the summer kitchen and smokehouse and all three buildings were destroyed.
Mr. Knece carried $300 insurance on his household goods in the Hummel & Plum agency and Mr. Heffner carried $2000 on the house in the Boyle & Johnson agency. Mr. Heffner valued the house at $4,500. It is thought that the fire originated from a stove in the kitchen.
Mr. Knece's loss was about $2000.

MAYOR'S COURT

Chief of Police Myers and Officer William McCrady held a full house in poker game at the rooms of John Phillips Sunday afternoon when the game was going at full blast. John Phillips, Joe Palm, Edward Smallwood and Isaac Goff were placed under arrest. In mayor's court this morning they plead guilty. Phillips was fined $25 and costs amounting in all to $33.70 for running a gambling house. Smallwood and Goff were fined $10 and costs, each amounting to $18.70 for gambling.

Ellis Hancher was ordered in Sunday for parking too close to a fire hydrant.

Ralph Iles was fined $100 and costs for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. In default he was sent below.

SEES McADOO'S NOMINATION

Manager Rockwell Says He Already Has 163 Delegates.
Cleveland, April 14.—In a statement issued here by David Rockwell, manager of the McAdoo campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, it is said that McAdoo has 163 delegates already elected, in every section of the country. Rockwell predicts McAdoo will end the week with 200 delegates and that he will enter the New York convention with 500 votes and secure the nomination. Rockwell adds: "Thus far McAdoo delegates have been elected as follows: Arizona, 4 1/2; Alaska, 6; Canal Zone, 6; Georgia, 28; Hawaii, 6; Illinois, 10; Iowa, 26; Kansas, 20; Maine, 8; New Hampshire, 7; North Dakota, 10; Philippines, 6; Porto Rico, 6; South Dakota, 10; Wisconsin, 10; total, 163.

State to Exhibit Cattle.
Columbus, April 14.—For the first time since the state has been a breeder of fine cattle it will be able to compete for Ohio state fair prizes this year. G. R. Lewis of the board of agriculture has given his permission to the state welfare department to permit that department to participate in open competition at the 1924 state fair.

Six Miners Lost Lives.
Columbus, April 14.—Six Ohio miners lost their lives during the month of March, according to a report filed with the industrial relations commission by Jerome Watson, chief of the mining division.

Woman Justice of Peace.

Well Supplied With Teeth.
The shark, it appears, is common with most reptiles and fishes, is not worried by the fear of a toothless old age and has a supply of molars always on hand in case of emergency. As Mr. Pindar puts it, "he has several rows of teeth one behind the other, and as fast as the teeth in the outer row are lost, they are replaced by those just back of them."

Tank for Flowers.
A circular tank to be placed on the rims of flower pots has been invented, from which a tube extends to convey water to plant roots slowly and evenly.

Bible Thought for Today
THE BEST MEDICINE.—A merry heart doeth good like a medicine; but a broken spirit drieth the bones.—Prov. 17:22

TAXES AND TAXES.

The Mellon bill probably will be scuttled by the political pirates, but the country is neither deceived nor confused with reference to its virtues, as the baneful buccaneers are likely to discover.

The secretary of the treasury has been a godsend to the nation, has given his department a business man's administration and the popular favorable reaction to his definite proposals has proved to be the greatest in the economic history of this country. Not all the proletarianisms of the Wheelers, Brookharts, Heflins, Harrisons, Caraways, Robinsons, LaFollettes, Stevensons and their kind can operate to confute the facts as presented by the secretary.

But there are taxes and taxes. Senator McCormick, in a recent letter to the president, calls attention to the fact that our chief tax troubles are those near home.

The senator suggests that a conference of governors be called to consider ways and means of checking burdensome increase in local and state taxation and the mounting cost of state, county and municipal governments. He affirms that state taxes have increased 183 per cent, county taxes 141 per cent and those of cities and towns of more than 2,500 people over 80 per cent and some of the larger cities more than 100 per cent, all within a decade.

Federal taxes should be reduced, but some means should be devised to reduce state, county and municipal taxes if the nation is to continue peaceful, prosperous and happy. A conference of governors might prove to be a good thing, but the only relief that can come to the public with reference to overburdensome taxation must come thru wise business administration, sane retrenchment in the matter of public expenditures in state, county and municipality. There is no other permanently effective way.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Two Shot From Ambush.
Gallipolis, O., April 14.—Eber Wolfe was fatally injured from buckshot wounds and H. H. Roush, his partner in operating a sand digger in the Ohio river, was severely injured as a result, police said, of having been shot from ambush near Crown Point.

PNEUMONIA

Caused Death of Seymour Crable—Funeral Services Monday.
Seymour Crable died at his home on York street, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. He had been ill two weeks and his death was due to pneumonia. The deceased was born in Ashville August 28, 1865 and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Crable. He married Miss Leavie Hixenbaugh. His wife, three sons and four daughters survive. The children are Mrs. Glenn Gilmore, of Columbus; Lloyd, Blenn and Russell Crable, Misses Velma, Irene and Esther Crable, at home. Of his immediate family, there is living one sister, Mrs. George Brobeck, of Columbus.
The funeral services were held this afternoon at the Bible Christian church at 2 o'clock. Captain Denty of the Salvation army conducted the services. Interment in Forest cemetery.

Awful Thought.

AMUSEMENTS

One of the largest exterior sets ever constructed inside a studio was used at Paramount's west coast plant at Hollywood, California, for scenes in William de Mill's Paramount production of "The Marriage Maker," which will be showp at the Met theater next Monday.

An exact reproduction of a famous Italian garden in Rome, Italy, this set occupied an acre of floor space. Fifteen thousand square feet of grass were transplanted from fields near Hollywood, while hundreds of plants, flower bushes, vines and shrubs were rooted and actually growing as the camera registered the scene.

A fish pond, with seventy-five goldfish, is in the center of the garden, while two costly statues and a fountain preserve the likeness of the original in Rome. Concrete banisters with several tall columns and a broad garden walk, constructed by a force of fifteen workmen and utilizing more than thirty tons of concrete, are but partial examples of the labor that went into the construction of the big set.

The theme, of "The Marriage Maker" is most unusual. From the woods and fields comes a creature who figures largely in the love affairs of four persons and to set an example for thousands of others. Charles de Roche, as the Faun, also known as Prince Sylvani, is an outstanding figure in "The Marriage Maker." He brings a solution to all difficulties encountered by Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt, featured in the principal roles. He is a firm believer that money is the root of all evil, and so forces an introduction for himself among civilized people for the purpose of helping humankind to overcome this evil. How the Faun brings happiness to all concerned makes an interesting picture.

CHASED THE WRONG RAINBOW.
There was once a contest held for the best imitation of Charlie Chaplin. It is said that Charlie Chaplin himself entered the contest unbeknown to the judges. He was awarded sixth place.
You are the judge of many contests every day. This same juggling of values often takes place in business. A sixth-rate idea or a cheap imitation may occupy first place in our minds, while the fundamental and big idea gets sixth consideration. Many of us are so busy chasing imitation sixth-rate rainbows that we lose sight of the real, magnificent one.

NATIONAL GUARD

Inspection Will be Called at Noon on Unknown Day.

The various units of the 37th division of the Ohio National guard will be called to quarters preparatory to mobilization. Some time during the month a telegram will be sent to all company commanders at noon of an unknown day. Immediately the men will be called in, equipped and armed capable for mobilization. This test call will demonstrate how quickly and how completely a company can be ready to move.

A federal inspector will be present to check up on the manner and promptness of the response to the call. The men are anxiously awaiting this opportunity to demonstrate their efficiency. Lieutenant Boggs of the Motor Transport company and Captain Holman of the Medical corps are confident that their men will make a satisfactory showing.

WHY HE COULDN'T PAY.

There are all kinds of excuses for not paying a bill, good and bad, but one of the most comprehensive that has even come to our attention is the following, picked up by Mr. D. C. Jacobs, of Fremont, Ohio:

"For the following reasons I am unable to send you a check; I have been held up, held down, sandbagged, walked on, sat upon, flattened out and squeezed—first by an income tax, the excess profits tax, war loans, war bonds, war savings certificates, the automobile tax and every society and organization that the inventive mind of man can invent to extract what I may or may not have in my possession.

"Also the Red Cross, the Children's Home, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Belgian Relief, the Australian Relief, the Black Cross, the double cross and every hospital in the country. The government has governed my business so that I do not know who owns it. I am suspected, inspected, examined and reexamined, informed, required and commanded so that I do not know who I am, where I am or why I am here at all.

"All that I know is that I am supposed to be an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire and hope, and because I will not sell all I have and go out and beg, borrow and steal money to give away, I am discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked at, lied to, lied about, held up, hung up, robbed, and so near ruined that the only reason I am hanging on to life is to see what will happen next."—Good Hardware.

HOSPITAL SALVAGES AN ARTIST.

A Boy's Paradise! Indians skulking in the sage brush, swiftly moving trains, steamships, wild animals crouching in their lairs! All the movement and action of boyish dreams are created by thirteen year old Joe Jones as he lies on his cot in the Scottish Rite hospital near Atlanta, Georgia, every inch of his body strapped except his marvelously dextrous hands. A leather bandage attached to pulleys and weights holds his chin, both legs are in plaster casts with pulleys and chains to hold them in place until they grow straight. Flat on his back he lies without the knowledge of what it is to run jump or dive.

As marvelous as the life of Helen Keller and as strange as the musical genius of Blind Tom is the gift of design of this fragile fragment of human life. Absolutely perfect in every delicate detail are the figures he cuts with no other materials save a small pair of scissors and a plain sheet of paper. Every figure he cuts expresses motion and action, a very difficult achievement for mature artists and nothing short of phenomenal in a boy who has never known movement. By months of training an ordinary person might do the figures that Joe makes without any seeming effort or knowledge that it is remarkable. Every minute detail is perfect. You can see the wind blow the tails and manes of his horses, you can see the muscles of his lions, quivering crouched for a spring. A stage driver cracks a whip cut to the smallest of a pencil mark.

And as he cuts he softly whistles and the boy seems to have slipped away into a sort of trance, a sort of paradise in which he is the creator. When he has finished he hands you his paper figure with a smile of happy satisfaction that is beyond the comprehension of well persons. — The Blackboard.

That's Easy Enough.

A man's hair, it is estimated, turns gray five years earlier than a woman's.

BE WISE.

Have your work done by the Circleville Welding Co., and you will save time and money.

Our attention has been called to the fact that a vast amount of work done by amateurs thru the county has not proven satisfactory.

A mechanic may be proficient at his own trade, but no jack of all trades can excel in any one particular line of work. Our work for the past five years has been welding, nothing else.

If it can be fixed, we can fix it. If you want a real job come and see us. If you want a half a job done cheap let the amateurs do it.

You wouldn't trust your family with a quack doctor, so why trust your castings to a quack welder.

Highly Infectious

Live Stock Plague

Warning Issued Against

Foot and Mouth Disease.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The highly-infectious live stock plague known as foot and mouth disease has broken out in California, in the vicinity of Oakland. The United States Department of Agriculture immediately quarantined three counties, and a few days later six additional counties, to prevent the spread of this disease which is prevalent in many foreign countries, but has been entirely absent from the United States since May, 1918.

The infected cattle, hogs and goats in the quarantined region are being slaughtered and buried in deep pits. This action is necessary to protect the nation's extensive live stock industry from this foreign plague. Suitable indemnity is paid to the owners of the animals destroyed. Department veterinarians believe the outbreak is now under control, but owing to the highly-infectious nature of the disease, it is well for all live stock owners to know the symptoms.

Small blisters appear on the membrane of the mouth, on the tongue, inside the cheeks, and on the lips. These blisters contain a yellowish, watery fluid. Soon afterwards eruptions similar to those on the mouth appear about the feet and may cause lameness. Dairy cows often have similar blisters on the udders and teats. Affected animals show pain when attempting to eat and may refuse their feed, yet the animal may open and shut its mouth with a smacking sound. As the disease progresses, strings of ropy saliva hang from the lips. Internal organs may become affected and, in such cases, the disease is quickly fatal. In the present outbreak in California one cow died on the second day. Animals most susceptible to foot and mouth disease are cattle, swine, sheep and goats.

Help the United States Department of Agriculture to stamp out this malignant disease quickly. Examine your stock and report any suspicious cases to the nearest veterinarian, state live stock official, or notify the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Delaware County Using

Certified Potato Seed

Use of certified potato seed has shown a marked increase in New Castle county, Delaware, within the last four years, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. This county, while not a large producer of potatoes, grows annually about 400,000 bushels as a secondary cash crop, supplying a near-by city market. Use of certified potato seed to improve the quality of the crop which the county extension agent has advocated as part of the county's extension program has, therefore, interested the farmers of the county generally.

As a beginning, two bushels of certified potato seed were tried out by one farmer. This yielded at the rate of considerably more than double the average yield from locally grown seed and aroused much interest in use of certified seed. The following year four farmers volunteered to grow larger demonstration plots, as there was some uncertainty felt as to whether or not it would be practical to use the certified seed in extensive plantings. This time the certified seed more than doubled the yield of marketable potatoes from local seed grown under like conditions as a check. These demonstrations were so convincing that 400 bushels of certified seed were planted the following season and the next year, 1923, the amount of certified potato seed used in the county increased to over 1,400 bushels.

Second Year's Growth Is

Best Clover for Seed

The second crop of the second year's growth of sweet clover is the best for seed purposes. Sometimes good yields are obtained from the first crop of the second year's growth. It may be harvested with a grain binder. Yields of from two to eight bushels per acre may be expected.

Sweet clover should be cut for seed about the time three-fourths of the seed pods become dark. Avoid handling when in a very dry condition, as it will shatter badly. Bind and shock like a small grain crop. Thresh when thoroughly dry.

FARM FACTS

A washing soil gathers no profits.

Lime is good for sandy soil. It helps hold it together.

"There is virtue in the cow. She is full of goodness."—Burroughs.

A good garden should be covered once a year with manure if it can be procured.

Use fertilizers, but use them as a supplement to good farming and not as a substitute for good farming.

Besides being profitable, being a good farmer is an object lesson to others and therefore a community service.

Try some new vegetable this year. You can't improve either yourself as a gardener or your garden without certain amount of experimenting.

Nightmare

A pair of London lovers were strolling along late one evening when the girl said to her companion:

"Bill, I dreamt about you last night."

For one short moment Bill tasted heaven. "G'wan," he breathed, "yer never!"

"Yus," she continued, "I did straight. Yer know, fried fish an' mince pies always gives me the nightmare!"

Messed It

"Why do you look so sorrowful, Murphy?"

"I just heard a man call another a liar, and the man that was called a liar said the other man would have to apologize, or ther' would be a fight."

"And why should that make you so sad?"

"The other man apologized."

A SUBJECT FOR LADIES' AIDERS

By VIVIAN HAYES

EARLY in the morning Abner's daughter, Emma Caroline, hurried down the road to her father's farm. She was a thin, wiry woman, brisk of motion and sharp of tongue. Behind her, her own immaculate house, husband and children bore eloquent testimony to her neatness and efficiency. Inside of half an hour she had "red up" her father's house and placed before him with a clatter two prunes, a glass of buttermilk and a slice of toast. She whipped out the dishpan, briskly poured out some boiling water and stood, the dishcloth in her large, red hand, her eyes roving impatiently from the clock to her father, as he picked listlessly at his breakfast.

"Land, pa!" she burst forth at last. "what a time it takes you to eat! I don't want to hurry you, but I've a million things to do at home this morning—carpet rags to dye, soap to make, and I don't know what all besides. And since your sick spell my being here so much does eat into my time. I hope you'll realize that you can't ever again eat anything but simple food that'll digest easy. I hear Abbie Styles has been saying that in her opinion 'twas nothing more'n eating your own cooking that brought it on. Says that never to her dying day will she forget the meal she saw you fixing for yourself one noontime when she stopped to get a setting of eggs, greasy fried potatoes and coffee that had boiled at least an hour and was black as night. Says it made her head ache—humpf! Maybe 'twouldn't have ached quite as much if she hadn't been a widow and you a widower."

"I said as much to the one who told me, and, says I, 'Pa can come and live with us any time he says the word,' says, 'an' he knows it. It beats all the way he hangs onto living there alone, when he might be where there is folks—and you'd better think it over seriously, pa."

"When you had your health 'twas some different, but you can't deny that you aren't picking up any. I'll leave the dishes for you to do. I shan't be down again today."

"Your egg-nogg for lunch is on the cellar bottom and there's plenty prunes cooked up—and you can fix your hot milk and your rice for supper. I'll be down first thing tomorrow morning." With a jerk of her shawl she hurried away.

For a long time her father sat motionless, his broad shoulders sagging, despondently as he leaned unseeing over his untasted breakfast. With a sigh his eyes focused upon his food, and an expression almost of ferocity appeared upon his kindly features. He hastily cleared the table and went out to attend to the chores. At noontime he assembled his egg-nogg and his prunes and then set them away, untasted. He sank listlessly into his armchair and gazed out of the window. Some time later the door flew open with a bang and a red-cheeked urchin slammed a napkin-covered basket upon the kitchen table, glibly repeating, "Mis' Styles sent this for the Ladies' Aid supper, and tell Mis' Henderson she'll be down in time to make the coffee." With a clatter he was off and away. Abner ran to the back door, shouting, "Hey, this belongs at Lot Henderson's, on the lower road," but the small messenger was out of sight.

An aroma, elusive, provocative, memory-stirring, pervaded the vicinity of the basket. Cautiously Abner folded back the enshrouding napkins and stood gazing worshipfully. There, as hot as though just out of the oven, reposed an earthen baking dish of fragrant escalloped oysters, its opulent mound of crusty brown surface hinting tantalizingly of the deliciousness beneath, and a deep, golden-hued pumpkin pie. Abner stared hungrily, his wistful eyes shining. Then with a groan, he threw back the coverings and walked resolutely away—but eventually he came back!

Some time later Abbie Styles rapped lightly at the kitchen door. "Has my basket been left here by mistake?" she began, then stopped as her glance fell on the empty dishes.

"Abbie," stammered Abner, his shamefaced air but partially concealing an all-pervading satisfaction, "a few hours ago I was a poor, starving old critter, dying a horrible death from an overdose of skimmilk and prunes. If your First Aid supper hadn't come just when it did, I vow I would have passed away. The Ladies' Aid never had a likelier subject for missionary work. I'm through dieting for good and all—only," he heaved a prodigious sigh, reddened in embarrassment, and blurted out, "it'll be awful hard to go back to my own cooking again! Ho, hum!"

Mrs. Styles' comely face became a trifle more rosy. "I'm real glad you ate it, Abner," she declared, heartily, "and, land, I do a sight of cooking. Ain't a mite of reason why you shouldn't come up to supper tomorrow night. I'll be expecting you." She hurried away, and the doorway looked suddenly bleak in consequence.

"Land, land!" breathed Abbie, with a mischievous smile, as she caught up another basket from beneath the hedge, "maybe 'twas awful bold of me—but him so shy and never quite daring to come to the point! Yes, yes, him being most starved, together with that 'first aid supper,' was the only combination that would've ever been effective! What'd he say, I wonder, if he knew that basket was sent there a-purpose?"

Spring Millinery Now in Limelight

Tailored Hat, Tricorn, Sail-or, Cloche and Toque Are Popular.

Becomingness is the point to be considered in the spring bonnet, and if the headwear should prove to be not of enduring type it still may serve on occasion, and the loss is not great. In these days, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, when seasons overlap—when chiffons are worn in mid-winter and furs in summer—a flower hat may accompany a velvet gown, and a fur-trimmed toque be worn with a spring taffeta. The exotic taste demands strawberries in January and a fox necklace in July.

At this season the canny couturiere has ready something captivating in a chapeau. Material does not particularly signify, for velvet is as fashionable in summer as tulle in winter. The hat must be suitable and becoming, and for this numberless combinations are created.

They are: The severe tailored hat of sports design, the tricorn, still sailor, cloche and toque, usually of ribbon or silk in bands, or one of the new straws. The cloche, holding tenaciously, is varied and shaped to fit many faces. More and more there is recognition of the flattering line which shows a bit of the hair softly waved or curled.

Thus a chic little model is evolved that is the very latest thing from the other side. This is a quaint suggestion in black of the Shaker bonnet, snug, shading the brow and faced with a delicate shade of pink or light green, as the original model from Rose Descot happens to be. An ornament of green beads is fastened at one side of this little cloche, and narrow black ribbons tie under the chin.

This tie effect is a novelty, particularly with the smartest French models. One of these is a small silk cloche, black, with small ribbon flowers and figures forming a pattern Chinese in character all over the crown and narrow drooping brim. A strap attached to each side of the hat, passing under the chin, is of silk, and the embroidery matches the hat. A handbag made of the same silk and needlework is entirely new.

Felt Favored in Paris.
Felt is all the rage at Paris, and is now seen in the softer, larger hats, trimmed with flowers, needlework or with severe simplicity, having but a pin or stiff ribbon ornament in the way of trimming. Yet ribbon hats are exceedingly popular, and the prediction is made that milan will be the most popular of all the braids.

It is shown in the walking hat, the cavalier, tricorn and drooping brim.

No. 1.—The Hat is Modeled to Suit the Face, the Height and the Silhouette of the Wearer.

No. 2.—A Breezy Brim Hat, a Softly Drooping Milan, Trimmed With Roses and Streamers.

both close and wide. In black it is stunning, with glycerined feathers, coque, or one of the new straight ostrich novelties that hang far below the brim and edge, over the shoulder.

For the present the popularity of felt is shared with duvetyne, of which some of the most chic small hats are made. The crowns of these are plain, stitched or banded crosswise, with a contrasting cloth or ribbon, and the tight little shapes are made the more conspicuous with trimming of extreme style, high, long and drooping, or wound in scarf fashion under the chin.

To relieve the trying effect of these hats a new arrangement of the hair is seen, so that the curled tops of the bobbed or the marcel wave of the longer hair is just visible in a softening line about the face.

The needlework hat is so universally liked that it is to be had in endless variety. Effective yet inexpensive hats are made of satin, with machine stitching or applique of whatever sort. But the most exclusively modeled little shapes are shown by a milliner who translates Paris ideas. They are light as thistledown, snug, covered with taffeta or satin and with a delicately traced pattern of flowers embroidered in floss and ribbons. These are not inexpensive, but they are lovely and artistic, and they lack any "period" expression.

Motifs From the Chinese.

The extravagances in Egyptian, batik and other showy types have given place to the more graceful styles, though certain motifs from the Chinese are much liked. A stunning turban built on Oriental lines is of black satin, with a bit of Chinese jade ornamenting the front. The influence of Persian forms and fabrics is seen in some of the toques that serve for many occasions in the between seasons, and are worn smartly with the one-piece gown and the incidental trinkets that are the fad of the day.

A unique turban, invented to meet the demand of sports togs, is formed by wrapping a length of satin around the head and tying the ends passed under the chin to form a bow at one side. A medallion in coral-colored enamel is posed in the center, over the brow, in picturesque rajah fashion.

The radical change of a few seasons ago which absolutely stripped hats of any and every sort of trimming has given a modified type to the fashions of this year. The hat itself is modeled to suit the face, the height and silhouette of the woman that wears it. Its becomingness does not depend upon the trimming, though a finished effect is acquired by the addition of a feather, flower or ornament just as a buckle or other high light is used on a gown. It attains its full value because of the simple background.

The crescent-shaped bars and other half circling bands of brilliants, so popular on the plain black cloche in the winter hats, are still seen on the silk toques and close shapes for usual wear, but a fancy ostrich, a chou or cluster of ribbons or a single large flower of velvet or silk outlined with silver dust or beads is a newer feature.

Some of the flowers are ravishingly beautiful—calla lilies of silk and velvet, water lilies, lotus blossoms, big luscious roses, often a single flower with long stem.

Craving for Individuality.
The tendency toward the styles of the directoire is evident in some of the latest models, and there is distinct feeling for individuality. A certain mode is the established standard of the day, but many variations are seen, and at no time have there been so many different styles.

In the "French room" of one milliner of prestige are a wattleau, to be worn with one of the costumes of the period; an English walking hat, a needlework cloche, a breezy brim hat, a softly drooping milan—trimmed with roses, and coquettish ribbon streamer—and many others of the medium, less distinctive types.

Ribbon is an important item in the new millinery. Whole hats are made of ribbon bands, wide and narrow, and some of the prettiest little shapes in felt and in straw have but a single band, perhaps just a knot of brocaded ribbon, striped or flowered, for trimming. Formal cockades, rosettes, choux and dashing bows trim the shapes of the graceful or the more severe lines, and more is decidedly popular.

The glycerined ostrich appears to have had its day, though it has a certain brilliance and style and is still used on some of the smaller hats, sometimes as a full band about the toque shapes. The full ostrich plume is seldom seen, the preference being for the fancy novelty feathers made of ostrich. Some of the most exclusive hats of satin, ribbon or braid have but an inconspicuous touch of trimming.

Vellings Used on Hats.

The idea of veiling the flowered and figured silk frocks with lace, now so fashionable, is illustrated in some of the new French hats. A black milan of medium size, the brim shorter behind and shading the face, is trimmed with small pink silk roses sewed flat against the crown, over which drops a slightly gathered frill of chancilly lace. On golden brown milan the crown is outlined with dull bronze rose leaves under fine gilt lace.

Some exceedingly smart combinations of black and white are accomplished with the lace motif, and veils are again in vogue. The flattering effect of a veil of lace, or any of the newer nets, figured or embroidered, is too tempting to be easily given over and some charming ones accompany the latest millinery models from Paris. With a simple shape as foundation a veil gracefully draped, often caught with a pin or jewel, is artistic and stylish, and may be as easily fashioned by a clever amateur as by the most famous milliner.

Importations of veils for the earliest spring hats show many pretty colored nets and dyed laces, beige and brown being apparently most popular. There are, of course, the plain dotted nets to be worn over the face, but there is little demand for these. The fashionably gowned woman wears her veil as a decoration, something with which to elaborate her hat and to enhance its becoming quality. It is not essential that she be able to clearly see through it.

Magnets Lay Nails Straight

To lay nails straight in containers, a packer equipped with magnets is reported to have been built by a Swiss inventor. The machine is said to be able to fill kegs, boxes, or paper cartons and to handle wire rods, hairpins, knife blades and fishhooks with equal ease. The articles to be boxed up are poured into a huge vibrating hopper in lots of about a thousand pounds and are straightened out on large trays.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

TIMOTHY HAY MAKES POOR DAIRY FEED.

Clover, alfalfa and other legumes make far better hay for dairy cows and produce better milk than the best timothy, says C. C. Hayden, chief of dairy husbandry, Ohio Experiment Station. Yet questions coming to his department daily reveal the fact that many farmers still feed their milch cows timothy hay and corn stover.

The milk from cows fed timothy hay or stover and dry grains is low in vitamins. Mr. Hayden continues, and is not as valuable for children as that from cows fed bright legume hay. If timothy must be grown for hay it is best if cut very soon after the heads appear.

If no clover or alfalfa is coming on for use next winter, the best substitutes are soybean hay or field peas and oats. The peas and oats are seeded together as soon as the ground can be prepared and the soybeans are seeded after the danger of frost.

THE SPIRIT OF MERCY.

What one thing does this old world need more than another Kindness, says the man who has seen the evils that have flowed from selfishness and cruelty and lack of understanding of the life about us. And he is not far from right, provided he means not a wishy-washy kindness, but a kindness that arises out of understanding and a desire to promote justice.

Childhood is the time above all others in which to teach this spirit of tempered mercy. The hardened man who overloads or beats his horse doesn't go very far until he is detected thanks to the work that is being done by our protective societies. But between the point where outright cruelty ends and real kindness begins is a wide field in which the seared soul can do much that is far from kind. And it is in that field that occur the little thoughtless acts that darken the day. We shall not get kindness there until we have taught it to our children—or rather until we have kept them from becoming unkind, for the unwarped child is naturally kind to the life that is about him.

So today and during this week, which have been set apart to promote kindness, let us make a special effort to give our children an understanding of what kind actions are; to build on the native kindness that they have. If we can bring our children to manhood and womanhood with the kindness with which they started in infancy, it will be a good deal better for them and a good deal better for all the life with which they will come in contact.—Milwaukee Journal.

Unfair Methods Alleged.

MISSION WORKER REPORTS ON INDIANS

Describes Life and Habits of Jicarilla Apaches.

Washington.—R. Mildred Lang, secretary Young Women's Missionary societies and League for Service, in a report of Indian activities says that the twelfth birthday of a Jicarilla Apache Indian maiden marks the turning point in her life. She pulls out her eyebrows, which is a sign that her girlhood is over and that she is ready for matrimony. Her parents give her a coming-out dance, which lasts for several days, and she often meets her future husband for the first time. She enjoys great freedom before coming of age, but thereafter she must accept her parents' choice. She may postpone the wedding date, but she generally has to give in. Continuing the report says:

"Many of the Indian parents have very low moral standards and are ignorant of the sanctity of marriage, so it is with joy that missionaries bring Christian principles of living into the lives of the Indian maidens with whom they come into contact in the schools and on their field trips. One girl postponed her coming-out dance for two years, and when she was seventeen her parents tried to force her to consent to having it held. The girl ran away from home and came to the mission school. Now she works half of each day and is trying to live a Christian life."

In telling of the life of the Indian children, the report says that they are ingenious in their playtime. The girls make whole families of rag dolls, and they use their handkerchiefs to make camps or teepees for their dolls to live in. The boys whittle out wooden guns, which are sometimes mistaken for real weapons.

The Indians are a very superstitious race, according to the report. The house and belongings of every Indian who dies are burned so that the spirit of the dead will not be able to find the relatives and haunt them. The Indians have such a fear of death that they often leave their sick and go off to order the wooden box before the person is dead.

"They have great faith in the cures of the medicine man," continues the report. "When a baby has convulsions the medicine man will take the child by its feet and jounce it up and down, chanting all the while. Our minister's wife came into a hat one day just in time to save the life of one baby. If a man has a pain in his chest one cure is to slash the chest with glass and let the pain out. The government physicians for each tribe and the preventive measures practiced in our mission stations do a great deal for the health of the tribes."

Adopted by King's Spirit, Changes Name to Rameses

Colorado Springs, Colo.—So far as this life is concerned, Patrick Francis Butler, printer, now is Patrick Francis Rameses. Judge Cornforth has granted his petition for the change in name.

"Your honor, I am a spiritualist and through spirit communication I have been adopted into the family of King Rameses II," Butler told the court. "I wish to complete this spiritual adoption by changing my name. This change will not be detrimental to the interests of any person and it is a proper change."

Rameses says he was adopted in spirit about four months ago. He contends that he is related to 13 monarchs who ruled from 1500 to 1000 B. C. He is a graduate of the University of Dublin, Ireland, and was a member of the Roman Catholic church. He plans to visit Egypt.

Gold Star Twice Stolen From Tablet to War Hero

Woodbury Heights, N. J.—The borough council here has offered a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the person who has twice removed a gold star from in front of the name of the borough's only soldier who lost his life while serving in the World war. The borough placed a bronze tablet on a huge boulder in the center of the town containing the names of all its representatives in that conflict.

Last July it was noticed that the lone gold star on the tablet had been plucked out, and interested citizens had another star placed thereon. A few weeks ago this second star was found to be missing, and a quiet investigation was made. The borough finally decided that the matter should be given publicity and offered the reward.

Gold Dredge Sold for Taxes

Baker, Ore.—The gold mining dredge of the Sumpter Gold Dredge company, which was used for several years in the Sumpter district, was sold recently for taxes delinquent during 1920, 1921 and 1922 upon the order of Gustav Anderson, circuit judge of the eighth Oregon district. By special arrangement, the Eastern Oregon Light & Power company was allowed to buy the dredge by paying $10,362 in cash, the amount due.

Paroled to Pay Victims

Los Angeles.—"I will work a year for nothing for each of the persons I wronged," said Anita Tell to Judge Hahn in asking for probation on a charge of grand larceny. She was granted probation for three years, with instructions to repay persons she admitted having robbed.

LADY APRIL.

April is a Lady Fair
Who's noted for her tears,
And yet's she very popular
Thru all the passing years.
For every tear is like a cup
Of cool and crystal dew,
That falls upon a thirsty earth
Where green is pushing thru.

April is a Lady Fair
Who's noted for her smile;
Whose smile is twice as lovely when
You've seen her tears awhile.
And every smile is like a hand—
A very welcome one.
That reaches to the garden plots
Where seeds have just begun.

I wish I were a Lady Fair
Whose tears and smiles could go
To make and greet so fair a thing
As flowers when they grow,
But if I smile, it does not help
A single flower bed,
And if I weep, it only leaves
My nose a horrid red.
